

ROTD 4/18/06

1) The competition between SN1 and SN2 reactions is a balancing act between all of the various factors we've discussed.

2) "Internal" nucleophiles can assist in a substitution. This is called "neighboring group participation." Chemical warfare uses this principle (think mustard gases).

3) Beta-elimination is the reverse of an addition reaction.